The Italia Prize Dramas

CBC Wednesday Night to present Canadian productions of distinguished radio plays

SOME of the world's finest radio dramas, those winning Italia prizes over the past few years, plus vivid documentaries on subjects ranging from the building of the C.P.R. to the case of Ezra Pound, plus musical concerts by world celebrities, and by Canadian choirs, orchestras, groups and individuals—all these will make up this season's CBC Wednesday Night. Thus a tradition of fine broadcasting built up over the 11-year life of CBC Wednesday Night continues this year.

The annual Italia awards are Europe's most distinguished radio awards with more than 20 countries throughout the world taking part. This year's Italia Award was won by a CBC drama, A Beach of Strangers, written and produced by CBC producer John Reeves. CBC Wednesday Night has previously broadcast, through the BBC Transcription Service, such famous Italia prize winners as Dylan Thomas' Under Milkweed and The Dock Brief. This season, the prize-winning plays will have Canadian production. They will be heard on the first Wednesday of every month.

Following is a list of award winners to be heard, with the country of origin in parentheses—

October 7: The Streets of Pompeii by Henry Reed (England);

November 4: The Face of Violence by J. Bronowski (England);

December 2: The Devil's Tear by Theophile Gauthier (France);

January 6: An Evening in Late Autumn by Friedrich Duerrenmatt (Switzerland);

February 3: The Homecoming by Peter Hirche (Germany);

March 2: True But Not to Be Believed by Claude Aveline (France);

April 6: The Quick and the Dead by Herbert Eisenreich (Germany);

May 4: Christopher Columbus by Charles Bertin (Belgium).

CBC Wednesday Night documentaries start on November 11 with The Fall of Quebec, to be concluded on November 18. Joseph Schull writes and J. Frank Willis produces this four-hour documentary marking the 200th anniversary of the battle. Part 1 covers life in Quebec prior to its capture, Wolfe's preparations in England, his struggle up the St. Lawrence, the jealousy between civil and military authorities in Quebec, Wolfe's early attempts to take the city, and his resolve to scale the cliffs and reach the Plains of Abraham. Part 2 opens with the English on the Heights, and Montcalm mustering his army, and goes through the battle, then on to the final surrounding of Montreal by three English armies—and the fall of New France.

Other documentaries are as follows:

February 10: Van Horne and the Building of the C.P.R., by Tommy Tweed. A two-hour documentary

JACK BENNY and BOB HOPE

... present their first programs of the 1959-60 season this week on CBC-TV. On Sunday night Benny will be seen in the first of a new series of half-hour programs which will feature himself and George Gobel as emcees on alternate weeks. Hope will be seen on Thursday night in one of his one-hour specials to be presented from time to time during the season.

"The Wonderful World of Entertainment"

First program of the new "Startime" series, a U.S.-Canadian venture into television entertainment of the highest order

The most star-studded, exciting entertainment series in North American television history begins Tuesday night on CBC-TV. Show-business greats from both sides of the Atlantic will pool their performing, writing and directing talents in Startime, a 39-week series of 90-minute and hour-long spectacles originating with NBC in the United States and CBC in Canada. Several performers long established as top screen and stage personalities will make their TV acting debuts in the series.

The premiere this week is The Wonderful World of Entertainment (NBC), a revue described as "an excursion in depth into every phase of entertainment in music, drama, records, motion pictures and television" in the last three decades. It stars Rosalind Russell, Maurice Chevalier, Kate Smith, Jack Paar, Polly Bergen, and Eddie Hodges, youthful star of the Broadway hit The Music Man, and featured with Frank Sinatra in the film Hole in the Head. Rosalind Russell will act as the audience's guide as The Wonderful World of Entertainment unfolds on Tuesday night. Recently her name has been synonymous with that of Auntie Mame, the delightfully zany sophisticate whom she created on Broadway and in motion pictures. The production will be staged and choreographed by Bob Fosse, who was choreographer for the Broadway productions of Damn Yankees, Pajama Game and Redhead, and shared the honours in Bells Are Ringing. The script is by Howard Teichman, co-author of The Solid Gold Cadillac.

Jerry Lewis makes his TV drama debut October 13 in The Jazz Singer, the role created by the late Al Jolson. Lewis will make no attempt to imitate Jolson. The show's songs have all been adapted to his special style. Ingrid Bergman makes her long-awaited TV debut October 20 (NBC) in Henry James' The Turn of the Screw, adapted for her by James Costigan. Other NBC productions to be seen early in the series include The Crime of Jabel Deeks, featuring Sir Alec Guinness in his first TV dramatic appearance on this continent (the play was adapted by John D. Hess from his original Esquire magazine story, The Wicked Scheme of Jabel Deeks); and Shirley Booth will be seen in Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie.

Canadian contributions to the series start off October 27 with Arthur Miller's play The Crucible, adapted by Mavor Moore, with Leslie Nielsen in the leading role.

ROSALIND RUSSELL is viewers' guide through "The Wonderful World of Entertainment" Tuesday on "Startime."

Nielsen is a Canadian actor who has won acclaim recently in British and American stage, film and TV roles. The rest of the cast includes Diana Maddox, Douglas Rain, Douglas Campbell and John Drainie. Production will be by Harvey Hart. Arthur Laurents' Clearing in the Woods on November 10 features American actress Nancy Wickwire, seen last spring in an off-Broadway revival of the play, and recently at the Stratford (Conn.) Festival. Bob Allen will produce. Scheduling dates will be announced later for Summertime by the modern Italian writer Ugo Betti, produced by Eric Till; Arthur Miller's modern version of Ibsen's An Enemy of the People produced by Mario Prizek; Jean Anouilh's Point of Departure, produced by Paul Almond; Joseph Conrad's Secret Agent, adapted by Joseph Schull and produced by Harvey Hart; and the National Ballet's latest edition to its repertoire, Sir Arthur Sullivan's Pineapple Poll, produced by Norman Campbell.

Variety shows and musicals will be sprinkled through the rest of the Startime season, along with other top-flight dramatic productions.

Time For French

A new language series with Gerard Arthur

French-speaking Gerard Arthur and his English-speaking wife, Sheila, will be heard Saturday afternoons on CBC radio, beginning October 3, in a new 15-minute series for English listeners who would like to hear more spoken French.

Time for French begins each week with a brief news story from the week's headlines so that the audience may enjoy recognizing familiar names and events in another language. There will be a brief weather report, followed by a light, entertaining dialogue under the title C'est la vie. Monsieur, who is French, and Madame, who is English, will quarrel at the breakfast table, make plans for the fall garden clean-up, or discuss some every-day Canadian subject with wit and humour.

C'est la vie will use both languages, and the conversation will be quite easy to follow, even by listeners who understand little spoken French.

The program will be followed by Chansonettes, in which Jacques DesBaillets plays recordings of typically French songs and music.

ITALIA PRIZE DRAMAS

tells the story of Van Horne's stubborn battle to complete the building of the C.P.R. Writer Tommy Tweed's The Honourable Member for Kingston, a life of Sir John A. Macdonald, was a Wednesday Night feature some years ago.

October 14: Darwin Centenary by Lister Sinclair—An investigation of science's debt to Charles Darwin on the centenary of the publication of his The Origin of Species.

November 25: The Face of the City: Vancouver—a portrait in words and sound.

December 30: Profile of J. W. Dufoe, a biography of the great editor of the Winnipeg Free Press told in taped reminiscences and interviews by the people who knew him best and worked with him. The narrator will be one of Canada's foremost editors, George Ferguson, of the Montreal Star, formerly of the Winnipeg Free Press.

January 20: The Case of Ezra Pound. A biographical investigation of the poet from the days when he helped to bring about a revolution in modern writing to his activities during the second World War for which he was later accused of treason: a twentieth-century document of the artist involved in politics.

March 9: Publishing in Canada. A look at the literary situation in Canada today with special attention paid to book publishing, magazines, and the status and prospects of the full-time writer.

Music, of course, continues to play a major role in CBC Wednesday Night. Following are some of the highlights—

CBC Celebrity Concerts:

October 14: Guiomar Novaes (piano);

November 25: Albert Pratz (violin), Pierre Souvarin (accompanist);

January 20: Netherlands Chamber Choir (Canadian premiere);

February 3: Claude Frank (piano);

March 9: Claramae Turner (mezzo soprano);

April 6: Rosalyn Turek (piano).

Canadian Choirs:

December 16: Messiah: Mendelssohn Choir conducted by Frederic Sylvester.

March 23: The Children's Crusade by Pierné, conducted by Walter Susskind;

April 13: Golgotha by Frank Martin, conducted by Jean Beauden (North American premiere);

May 11: A Child of Our Time by Michael Tippett: Bach-Elgar Choir;

May 25: Festival Singers conducted by Elmer Isler.

CBC Intimate Opera Company:

October 28, January 13 and February 17.

Nickeltown, 1959

Dave Cruickshank of CBC Outside Broadcasts in Winnipeg presents a progress report on Thompson, Manitoba's newest town, situated in the northern part of the province in the heart of the International Nickel Company's new mining area. The company's mine and smelter will be in operation next spring, and already a portion of the ultimate 8,000 population is settled in their new homes. The program will include interviews with several INCO specialists describing the latest developments and with Dr. John F. Thompson, chairman of the board of the International Nickel Company, after whom the town is named.

CBW-7:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3
TELEVISION

Dennis the Menace

Today—"Dennis Goes to the Movies." The famous comic strip is brought to life in this new series. In the first episode, Dennis puts a little friend in his place to fool the baby-sitter while he follows his parents to the movies.

"Congratulations . . . It Was Just Awful"

"Morning Devotions" experiment provokes mixed reaction among CBW listeners

CBC RADIO'S two daily devotional programs, Family Worship and Morning Devotions have always had large followings of faithful (in two senses) listeners. The programs are mentioned—and praised—in our audience mail as much as any other in the schedule.

Never, however, has either of the programs provoked as much comment as did the CBW (Manitoba) series on Morning Devotions September 7-12 when Rev. Dr. Keith Clifford of Augustine United Church in Winnipeg used all six of his programs to expound his theories on religious music.

In a nutshell, Dr. Clifford's idea is that "somehow the church has got to overcome its distinction between sacred and secular music and begin once again to express its faith in terms of the music of the people." The music he played to illustrate his point—gospel songs by Mahalia Jackson, Maria Knight, Rosetta Tharpe, and Della Reese, and Father Geoffrey Beaumont's 20th Century Folk Mass—brought such mixed reactions as the following:

"I found your talks most refreshing. It has been a long time since I have heard anything from my church which made me stop and think. Thank you for playing music which shook us rather hide-bound church members to our roots." (From a Winnipeg housewife);

"What a shock! I thought the CBC had cancelled another good old standby to cater to the juke-box gang and be as indistinguishable as possible from the private stations. I nearly turned it off before the cacophonous record was done. You could have knocked me over with a feather when it turned out to be Morning Devotions after all." (A Brandon woman listener);

"Congratulations! Your week of enlightenment was greatly appreciated by me and I hope by many. Being a housewife I was particularly pleased to hear some new thoughts that I could ponder over and discuss with my friends. One or two found the music disgusting while others of us found it to be most informative. Good luck in your crusade, and may God give you strength and courage to stand up against your critics, which I'm sure will be many." (A suburban Winnipeg housewife);

"I look forward to Morning Devotions, but this week it has been just awful. Just who do you think listens to M.D.?—Not the people who enjoy that music!" (Winnipeg listener).

One listener prophesied: "I'm sure one would find that in every parish there would be a great schism—the older congregation vehemently opposed to such startling change and the younger members taking it up joyously." But an 82-year-old woman wrote: "I think it is wonderful for you to do this. I remember well when we used to sing our beloved songs with the tunes of the songs of the world, but God understood. Thank you and bless you for your courage."

The mixed reactions to the programs was no surprise to Dr. Clifford. It was, in fact, because he knew it would shock many listeners that he decided to give was born in Transcona, Man., and educated there and at United College in Winnipeg (B.A., B.D.) and the University of London (Ph.D.). During the first part of his college years he intended to become a professional musician and studied harmony, counterpoint, composition and orchestration at the University of Manitoba and privately. He earned his way through United College by playing the trumpet in dance bands. Dr. Clifford received his Ph.D. for advanced studies in Puritanism. While in England he was also minister of a Congregationalist church in London which was noted for its congregational singing.

Morning Devotions this unusual twist.

"I find that a devotional program either promotes my stodginess or challenges me to action before God," Dr. Clifford explains. "I think it is the responsibility of the speaker to 'stab his listeners awake,' so I picked a topic which seems fairly obvious to most people, but about which they don't really do much thinking—music."

One of Dr. Clifford's colleagues, a United Church minister in rural Manitoba, was affected in the desired manner. He told Dr. Clifford that he was shocked by the first few programs, but that by the end of the series he had reassessed his thinking and was sold on the idea. (A letter to CBC from another

20th CENTURY FOLK MASS

Since many readers could not hear the Manitoba series of Morning Devotions presented by Dr. Clifford, a recording of part of Father Geoffrey Beaumont's 20th Century Folk Mass, one of the controversial works played by Dr. Clifford on the series, will be broadcast this week in order to give readers of the accompanying article an opportunity to form their own opinions of the type of music Dr. Clifford discussed. It will be heard Tuesday (October 6) at 7:45 p.m. on CBW, CBK, and CBX (one hour earlier in Manitoba points on standard time).

"The Land of Promise," by W. Somerset Maugham, adapted for television by Alwynne Whatsley. Rosemary Harris stars as Norah Marsh in this turn-of-the-century drama on the theme of The Taming of the Shrew, set in Western Canada. Norah, a young English girl accustomed to an upper-class Edwardian background, joins her brother and his wife on their wheat farm in Manitoba and discovers that her ladylike qualities clash with her new surroundings in this rugged "land of promise." Norah, who has failed to receive the legacy she expected after 10 years as a companion to a wealthy old woman, attempts to escape this sort of fate a second time by emigrating to Canada. She soon clashes with her brother's wife, Gertie, who thinks Norah too superior and genteel. Although Norah stands up to Gertie's attempts to humiliate her she is in an impossible position. Impetuously, she agrees to marry one of the hired men. She submits to doing his housework, but fights him as a husband and lover until he forces her to a more obedient behaviour. When she receives in the mail an offer of a job in England and a cheque for £500 from the estate of her late employer, Norah sees her chance to escape.

The Jack Benny Show

First program of Jack Benny's 10th season on television (his 28th on the air), with Don Wilson, his announcer for 26 years; Rochester, who made a guest appearance on Benny's (radio) show 22 years ago and has been with him on the air ever since; Mahlon Merrick and his musical "parolees;" singer Denis Day, the Sportsman Quartet, and impersonator Mel Blanc. From Hollywood. (Next week in the same period, and alternate Sundays thereafter—The George Gobel Show).

The Twentieth Century

Background

This week Alistair Cooke, chief North American correspondent for the Manchester Guardian, gives his impressions of Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the U.S. and its effect, a week after the Soviet premier's departure.

Weekend in Sports

Latest happenings and scores from the world of sports reported by Steve Douglas. From Toronto.

About Messer's Buchta Dancers

Lively interpretations of country dances by the Buchta Dancers to the music of Don Messer and His Islanders have been acclaimed by television audiences across Canada.

Under direction of Gunter Buchta, the dancers will appear regularly on Don Messer's Jubilee, starting Monday, Sept. 28, on the CBC-TV network.

The group, formerly known as the Halifax Courteens, won dance competitions throughout the Maritime Provinces and on one occasion placed second in a contest at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Buchta, who came to Canada in 1950 and became a Canadian citizen in 1956, once spent nine months in hospital with a leg injury. At the suggestion of his doctor he took up dancing for exercise. Dancing soon became a hobby, and later his profession.

In 1958, Buchta and a partner from his group represented Canada at the International Dance Competition and placed third. He is a Master of Ballroom Dancing, the only Canadian to hold a fellowship from the Dance Teachers Association of Great Britain, and is the founder of the Canadian Championship for Ballroom Dancing.

Since coming to Canada Butcha has taught at the Maritime Conservatory of Music.

MORNING DEVOTIONS

minister appears in our Mailbag column on page 18).

Why are people shocked — at least at first—by the idea of sacred words cast in the idiom of popular music? There are several reasons, Dr. Clifford believes.

In the first place, most people's ability to judge religious music is inhibited by certain conventions. Dr. Clifford points out that it is actually a tradition of the church to turn the popularity of secular music to its own uses. In the middle ages many love songs, and even drinking songs, were transformed into hymns; and the origins of the carol are purely secular. The division between secular and sacred music is a fairly modern and artificial thing.

In the second place there is among church people an aversion to the contemporary. They don't want their religion to be contained within contemporary forms. "In so thinking they are denying that God himself by taking human form became a true contemporary—and still is so far as the church is concerned," Dr. Clifford explains. He feels that a statement such as the following, sent in by a woman listener, shows a lack of understanding of the true nature of the Christian faith, that it is, in fact, tinged with heresy: "I believe that the gospel music is to praise God and to lift the mind and soul above the things of this world."

Of all the arts, Dr. Clifford points out, music has suffered most from this dislike of contemporary forms for traditional beliefs. Although there are, for example, still some people who believe that churches should be built in the architecture of the middle ages there are now many churches that stand as striking examples of the best in modern architecture. And Dr. Clifford points to the modern mural on St. Paul's College as an example of the growing re-acceptance of contemporary art in the Christian church. But people are slower in accepting any change from the type of music that "solidified" in the Protestant churches almost 100 years ago.

"Somehow or other," Dr. Clifford said in the first of his radio talks, "our gears seem to have slipped and we haven't managed to shift them ahead in order to keep up with the new pace."

"... But why popular music?" Some people who do agree that more contemporary music is needed in the church have asked. To this Dr. Clifford replies that unfortunately most so-called "classical" contemporary music is of an experimental nature and not easily grasped by the layman. All church music, he believes, should be simple and easily remembered.

On the other hand, he admits that the line must be drawn somewhere. The music, whether "popular" or "classical," must be the best of its type if it is to be used in the church. Although he is sympathetic with the idea behind the use of "fox-trot hymns" sometimes heard, Dr. Clifford does not believe that they provide a wide enough framework for the expression of deep evangelical faith. And in the second of his radio talks Dr. Clifford opposed strongly "that spurious type of inspirational tune that seems to be all the rage nowadays on so many of our western-type musical shows."

Neither does Dr. Clifford believe that there is no place in the church for obviously great and timeless music from the past—such as that of Bach. What he is fighting is the idea that music must be (a) old and (b) unrelated to the tempo of contemporary life in order to justify its place in the church.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article was written because of the interest in Dr. Clifford's ideas shown by the large number of letters and telephone calls received by both CBC and Dr. Clifford. Its publication in CBC Times does not imply any agreement on our part with his ideas. Further comments on the broadcasts and on Dr. Clifford's ideas, in the form of letters for publication in our Mailbag column, would be welcomed.)

Children's television

No Formal Instruction— Just Useful Information

THE TV ADVENTURES of two children on a tramp steamer round the B.C. coast . . . music, people and activities of interest to teen-agers on radio's Teen Tempo . . . Mary Grannan's tales of make-believe . . . the child's curiosity for things and processes on See for Yourself . . . the combination of fact and fancy on Radio Magazine and Junior Magazine . . . the filmed adventures of Lassie and Roy Rogers — these are but some of the features of the new fall radio and TV schedules.

"We are taking programs from centres right across Canada," said Fred Rainsberry, supervisor of children's programs for CBC radio and television. "We don't demand that each region give us something supposedly unique to that region. But the mere fact that the programs originate from various points tends to give the schedule a national flavour."

The CBC is the only TV network in North America that has a department devoted solely to children's programming. The staff includes four professionally trained teachers whose experience ranges from elementary school to university. One staff member is a composer of distinction, two have had special training in psychology and one in agricultural science, and one is a professional journalist. Consultants include prominent educators with special skills in radio and TV.

Producers in the CBC children's department constantly seek new and more effective means of presentation. Programs like Junior Magazine use novel continuity techniques and are experimenting with the integration of film and studio techniques in a way that may have considerable influence in a wider field. Recent programs using these techniques won awards at Columbus, Ohio, and at the Vancouver Film Festival some weeks ago.

"We don't attempt any instructional television or radio in the formal sense," said Dr. Rainsberry, "but we do try to provide the child with useful and interesting information that will enrich his background. We assume the child has a natural curiosity about the world around him and we hope to stimulate a feeling of the importance of getting along with other people, the understanding of his physical environment, and a feeling of pride in his cultural heritage."

Of the new television programs, See for Yourself is particularly interesting. It tells of the romance of transportation, starting with railroads. Ross Snetsinger and a new performer, Stephen Barringer, investigate the workings of a railroad, talking to some of the people involved, and railroad stories are dramatized.

This Living World is interesting both for its content and its production. Originating in Montreal, the program is identical to the French network program, La Vie Qui Bat, except that it is in English. The two programs have the same bilingual author, the same French-Canadian producer, the same sets, the same animals in the same situations.

"Later in the series we might have some or all of the programs in French," said Dr. Rainsberry. "The program is a fascinating one and I'm certain the children will be listening to and learning French without realizing it."

Programs like Teen Tempo, Radio Magazine, Youth '60 and Junior Magazine are in part designed to develop talented Canadian children, "not in the unattractive, exhibitionist fashion so common to many so-called amateur hours," said Dr. Rainsberry, "but in a context of mature, professional talent."

Winnipeg sends a very interesting program to the network this year. It is called Art in Action. George Swinton, Professor of Art at the University of Manitoba, (Please turn to page 16)

PROGRAM NOTES OCTOBER 7

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information.

Art in Action

The basic principles of art, with Prof. George Swinton of Winnipeg. Private affiliates this week carry the first program of the series—"In Search of a Definition," in which Prof. Swinton will attempt to explain what art is, why art is, and the nature of the visual arts in terms of materials and techniques. CBWT will carry the second program of the series—"How Art is Directly Related to Life," in which Prof. Swinton shows how art does not imitate nature, that the artists has to interpret and select so that he may create a unique yet complete image. Frank Rasler is producer.

Have Gun, Will Travel

Western starring Richard Boone as Paladin. This week — an ageing bank robber offers Paladin a share of his loot in return for protection.

Live a Borrowed Life

Charles Templeton is moderator as panelists Bill Walker, Anna Cameron and Elwyn Yost attempt to guess the identity assumed by a guest expert on a famous person. From Toronto.

Studio Pacific

"The Treasure," by Vincent McDonnor. Mr. Dibbin is a thief, albeit a minor one. He is employed at a very respectable antique shop and on occasion he cleverly slips a small—and always French—antique into his pocket. The loss of these little "objets d'art" soon involves Scotland Yard. Mr. Dibbin is caught but let free after a strange and convincing explanation as to why he has been stealing. Jorm Winther, producer. From Vancouver.

amination of the problem of transportation in the Canadian North—how to overcome the problem of building landing strips where there is no flat ground, the possibilities of using aircraft with vertical takeoff, etc. Host on the series is Arctic explorer and flyer Doug Wilkinson.

R.C.M.P. Series Starts October 28

R.C.M.P., a new television series about the Mounties, has the official blessing of the world-famous police organization.

"This is a large-scale venture in the field of television and films, and we will co-operate to the best possible advantage," says Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac.

Although R.C.M.P. will be shown in Great Britain and possibly in the U.S., continental Europe and South America, Canadian viewers will see it first. The series starts on the CBC-TV network October 28.

R.C.M.P. will employ top-acting and production talent from Canada, Broadway and Hollywood.

Gilles Pelletier, a named best French-Canadian actor in 1958, plays the lead role of Cpl. Jacques Gagnier. John Perkins left the cast of Bells Are Ringing on Broadway to play the part of Const. Frank Scott. Canadian actor-comedian Don Francks portrays Const. Mitchell. Frances Hyland and John Drainie, well known to those who watch CBC-TV, will appear in one or more episodes.

Early episodes will concern the activities of a three-man R.C.M.P. detachment stationed in the fictitious Canadian town of Shamattawa.

Later stories will be filmed in various parts of Canada. They will describe experiences of Mounties in the Arctic and show operations of the R.C.M.P. marine division.

Hollywood director Bernard Girard produced the early episodes in the series. Girard was an originator of the Medic series on American TV and directed 48 episodes of You Are There.

The first 39 stories will have been filmed when the series begins on the CBC-TV network in October. With foreign sales in Britain and Australia, and other markets in the offing, it is almost certain there will be a second series.

Henry Fonda -The Deputy

In 1955, when Henry Fonda was filmed walking down a stretch of lonely road for a sequence in a TV dramatic show, he was reminded of a similar scene he made in the late 1930's. The picture was The Grapes of Wrath and it opened with Fonda leaving a truck and walking down a lonely road.

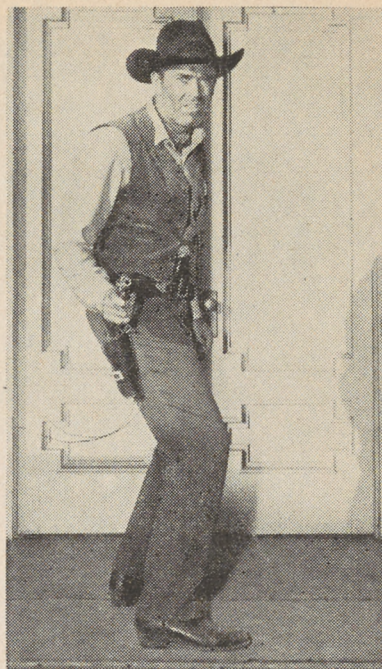

"I hadn't thought of it until now," said Fonda. "but that opening scene was lucky for me. I hope I do as well in this."

That sort of statement would be quite appropriate for a young hopeful at the beginning of his career. But does it fit an established leading man—one of Broadway's and Hollywood's most famous actors?

It does, if the star is Henry Fonda. The modest and soft-spoken manner that personifies his stage and screen performances is the Fonda manner off-stage as well, making him one of the best-liked people in an industry where modesty is not reported to be overabundant.

The actor made his television debut as star of his own series September 10 (in Canada, September 12 in the U.S.). He portrays Marshal Simon Fry in The Deputy, adventure series set in Arizona in the 1880's.

Fonda was born in Grand Island, Nebraska. He was raised and attended schools in Omaha, where he made an outstanding record in scholarship and athletics. He enrolled at the University of Minnesota with a journalism career in mind, earning tuition by teaching physical training in a Minneapolis settlement house. Subsequently unable to find newspaper work, Fonda worked at such varied jobs as telephone lineman, garage mechanic, iceman and window washer, before a chance visit to a new Omaha enterprise, the Community Playhouse, changed the entire course of his life. Joining the troupe at the suggestion of friends, Fonda felt so at home as part-time actor, set designer and technician that he became one of the theatre's leaders within three years, and decided on acting as a career.

Heading east, he added to his experience with summer stock engagements in Massachusetts, Washington (D.C.), Maryland and Pennsylvania. A notable acting company which he helped found, the University Players, had among its theatrical greats such eager beginners as Margaret Sullavan, Kent Smith, Myron McCormick, Josh Logan, James Stewart and Mildred Natwick.

Fonda's first professional engagement in New York was as extra and general understudy for the Theatre Guild. It was not until the revue, New Faces, that his name first appeared in a playbill. Later on, he acted in a revival of The Swan starring Geoffrey Kerr. The latter's wife, June Walker, spotted him in the company and knew he would make an ideal leading man for her next show, The Farmer Takes a Wife. Fonda leaped to stardom overnight in the play.

His numerous Broadway credits since then include Mister Roberts, Point of No Return, Caine Mutiny, Court Martial and most recently, Two for the See Saw.

PROGRAM NOTES

OCTOBER 8

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information.

The Deputy

Western starring Henry Fonda as Simon Fry, chief marshal of the Arizona territory, and Alan Case as his deputy.

Bob Hope Show

From Hollywood — a 60-minute comedy special starring Bob Hope, with actress Natalie Wood, singer Dean Martin, and Bing Crosby's sons — Gary, Lindsay, Philip and Dennis. Hope, Miss Wood and the Crosby boys will appear in a comedy skit called "Crumb at the Top." Hope and Martin will do a sketch entitled "Mozzarella," a spoof on the custom of having Hollywood stars officiate at the opening of restaurants. Dean Martin will sing "An Evening in Roma," and the Crosby boys will sing "Mack the Knife" and perform the "Rose Room" dance from their Las Vegas night-club act.

The Man From Blackhawk

A "whydunit" adventure series starring Robert Rockwell as insurance investigator Sam Logan.

Talent Caravan

Second program of the 1959-60 series with host George Murray. This week's competition features Alberta talent and originates in Calgary.

Changes Made In "Speaking French"

Prof. Jean-Paul Vinay and his "model student," glamorous Montreal fashion model Phyllis Claperton, return to the television network Saturday, October 10, for a new 26-week series of Speaking French.

More than 30,000 lesson summaries were mailed out to viewers from coast to coast last season. New lessons will be going out to viewers on the mailing list before the new series begins.

There will be two changes in the format of the program this year: Producer Larry Shapiro hopes to have a small group of students in the studio to participate in the lessons, and this year the entire 30 minutes will be directed towards an adult audience. (Hélène Baillargeon, who last year conducted the kindergarten portion of Speaking French is now working with the CBC's school broadcasts department on a daily 15-minute program of French for pre-school children. The program, as yet untitled, will be scripted by Raymond Duplantis, whose experiment with the Tan-Gau language system in the Oakville public schools has received widespread attention.)

Montreal TV critic Pat Pearce last year described Speaking

French as "education at its most painless." She wrote:

"Professor Vinay and his charming assistant are now old hands at all kinds of engaging visual aids to learning. Grammar, translation and pronunciation are combined in subtle and expert proportion so skillfully, indeed, that these programs have less the effect of teaching another tongue than the cheerful atmosphere of saying the same things two ways."

The lessons this year will continue with more tricks and special props and cartoons by Graeme Ross, all designed to make the program interesting to both beginners and advanced students. There will be special guests on the program from time to time, as required.

(Speaking French is pre-empted on most stations October 10 by a W.I.F.U. game).

About "The Man From Blackhawk"

Bob Rockwell, best known for his portrayal of Mr. Boynton in the Our Miss Brooks TV series, stars as an insurance investigator in the exciting series, Man from Blackhawk, another of the new American film series which will be shown first on CBC-TV. It starts Thursday, Oct. 1.

Rockwell portrays Sam Logan, a special investigator for the Blackhawk Insurance Co. of Chicago in the year 1875.

Following is what the company has to say about Logan on his personal file under the heading "General Remarks": "Very stable, highly intelligent and resourceful . . . dependable for routine paperwork . . . invaluable for possibility of dangerous physical encounters . . . use where others might fail."

Producer Herb Meadow spent seven months of research on the insurance industry before his first script was written. He likes to think of Man from Blackhawk as a "whydunit" rather than a "who-dunit" or a western.

"Sam Logan is interested in why insurance fraud is committed as much as he is in who the guilty party is," Meadow explains. "Logan is able to understand the people who perpetrate these crimes. He never judges them, he'll never preach. He discharges his assignments successfully because he understands, and there's your 'why-runit.'"

In filming Man from Blackhawk, producer Meadow used the Columbia Picture Corporation "ranch" in the San Fernando Valley. This ranch has a complete western town, 40 acres of range land, seaports and New York streets, all of which will be used in the series.

talks about painting and sculpture and demonstrates on camera how an artist sets about his work. Another new Toronto program, Sportstime, will show something of organized play for children—around six to nine years—featuring games, dancing, the use of apparatus like monkeybars, and so on.

Old favourites are also returning to the TV network, of course. There's The Friendly Giant with Robert Homme as Friendly, accompanied by Rusty the Rooster and Jerome the Giraffe. Last year, Friendly mentioned he had a cut-out for any viewers who liked to write in: nearly 10,000 youngsters did so. And then Maggie Muggins is coming back with her friend, Mr. McGarrity along with Grandmother Frog, Reuben Rabbit, and Fitzgerald Fieldmouse.

The hour-long Junior Magazine with host John Clarke will bring interviews, film, dancing, drama, music, singing and so on. This year Junior Magazine will feature a number of special programs. First (on November 1) is Search for the Stars. This will show some of the constellations that can be seen in the skies at this time of the year. It will illustrate the two deep-rooted attitudes that man has towards nature, his sense of mystery and awe along with his curiosity about facts. Further, the program will show something of the worldwide co-operation between the different nations in their common desire to read nature.

"In television, the children's department is also responsible for the selection of syndicated children's films seen each afternoon," said Dr. Rainsberry. "Since many of these films are commercially sponsored they are intended to reach a wide audience. In making our selection we try to keep in mind the needs of the sponsor and at the same time maintain the highest possible standards in film quality and program content."

Included in these film programs are Lassie, Mickey Mouse Club, Sky King, Huckleberry Hound, and others.

On radio, the children's programs are divided into three age groups. For the pre-schoolers, two special programs: Just Mary in which Mary Grannan returns to

Morning Devotions

• Cheers for Rev. Keith Clifford, who smashed the stained-glass windows within whose sanctified and other-worldly atmosphere most of us would keep Morning Devotions. What the series lacked in polish—few experiments are polished—it made up for in honesty and sheer courage. If CBC radio is as concerned as it professes to be with pushing back the frontiers and freeing broadcasting from commercial radio's devastating ruts it will not discourage these experiments in the religious field.—Rev. Fred W. McNally, Ph.D., Roland, Man.

• Have you completely lost your sense of decency? It is absolute sacrilege to allow such music on religious programs as you are allowing on Morning Devotions this week.—M. L., Winnipeg.

For more listeners' comments and more details on Dr. Clifford's ideas on "The Gospel in Modern Song" see page 5.

tell her tales of make-believe and Mr. Homme's House in which Robert Homme (of TV's The Friendly Giant) and pianist Mary Syme have music and story.

Radio's Children's Magazine (which now immediately precedes TV's Junior Magazine on Sundays, thereby providing two hours of children's programs) is aimed at pre-teenaged groups—with something of interest for their elders too.

"By means of a wide variety of subject and treatment on these programs," said Dr. Rainsberry, we try to give children a picture of the many ways of life that are the Mailbag on the subject of the unfortunate remarks made by a small man during Live a Borrowed Life September 9. Had the cameraman been instructed to shut off the picture and sound a convenient "Temporary Network Trouble" sign would have solved the problem as soon as it had arisen.—Miss E. I. L., Edmonton.

An interesting suggestion, but the Network Trouble slide is used ONLY in the event of network transmission trouble.

Gratefully Noted

• In a few weeks I am leaving to make my home in eastern Canada. For this reason I shall not renew my subscription to the prairie edition of the CBC Times in October. The "Times" has been a great source of information and pleasure to me ever since it was first published. I do thank you, and trust I shall have as much satisfaction from the eastern edition.—Miss F. A., Regina.

For the benefit of other readers who may be moving, here are the addresses where the other editions of CBC Times may be obtained: Eastern edition—P.O. Box 500, Toronto (French—P.O. Box 6,000 Montreal); Pacific edition—701 Hornby Street, Vancouver.

Wrestling Fan

• We see that there are no wrestling bouts for Saturday night (September 19). Well, if you want to show a football game why don't you take off Mr. Fix-It, Ivanhoe, and Swing Easy? No one would miss those programs. Are you gone crazy or something?—"Country Viewers."

essential for a healthy democracy. We aim to present to them the great historical traditions of their own country and by the example of leaders of the past, inspire them to search for the opportunities of the future."

Children's Magazine will incorporate and enlarge last year's highly popular Saturday Show with Rod Coneybeare and Charles Winter. There will also be special guests like singer Alan Mills, plus tall stories, dramas, and children talking about themselves.

like Doug Maxwell, jazzman Phil McKellar, Laughton Bird with classical music, and others.

For the future, the CBC Children's Department is both intensifying and expanding its outlook. "We are planning for the international distribution of our programs on tape and film," said Dr. Rainsberry. "In co-operation with such agencies as UNESCO and the European Broadcasting Union we hope to widen further the international community of children. On the other hand, in co-operation with the Audience Research Department we are developing projects to get a more accurate idea of the impact of our radio and TV programming on young people."

Why the salmon ever swallows things like a fisherman's fly, is a mystery. He doesn't eat anything on his journey up-stream—why should he snap at a fly with a hook in it? It's no good salmon fishermen talking to me about skill—I think that the old salmon simply gets irritated by this darned thing being trailed in front of his nose and snaps at it. So that hooking a salmon is all a matter of luck. Playing it and landing it is another thing.—Wynford Vaughan Thomas on the BBC.

Program notes and station listings begin on page 20

SIR ERNEST MacMILLAN will conduct the orchestra on the new classical talent show which starts this Sunday on CBC radio.

MUSIC ON RADIO

by FRANK HAWORTH

JULIAN BREAM, the celebrated performer on lute and guitar, whom many people will remember from his TV appearance at Toronto last season, with the no less celebrated tenor Peter Pears, is to be heard in the first concert of a new Distinguished Artists series, on Tuesday evening this week.

Of all the sources of sound, plucked strings vary most in public estimation, and have been most subject to the vagaries of fashion, at least since the maturing of "art" music, and its differentiation from the "popular" variety. Harp and lyre, and their innumerable variants, go back to the beginning of things; the instruments that can sing developed only yesterday, by comparison, and even after their appearance on the scene, those that twang held sway for a long time. For long after the orchestra had become an established medium of artistic utterance, it was unthinkable without the background

Radio - The Fall Schedule

CBBC RADIO will stress a balanced entertainment week in its fall schedule of Trans-Canada network programs. New shows have been added to the schedule and some existing one given new times to provide a strong daily foundation of feature programs.

Project '60, the CBC Symphony Orchestra and Vancouver Chamber Orchestra concerts, and Children's Magazine have been moved to new time periods. Among new programs will be performances by a specially-organized CBC light concert orchestra, regional variety shows, a serious-music talent contest, highlights from Trans-Canada Matinee, short-story readings by actor John Drainie, and a series of national-music programs.

Project '60, its scope widened to include music and drama programs as well as documentaries, will be heard Tuesday evenings and repeated on Sunday afternoons. The CBC Symphony Orchestra broadcast will be heard on Friday evenings instead of Sunday evenings. A major undertaking by the orchestra later in the year will be five concerts in which all of the Beethoven symphonies will be performed. The Vancouver Chamber Orchestra concerts will be heard on Monday evenings. Children's Magazine (with Rod Coneybeare) will be moved from Saturday mornings to Sunday afternoons.

A 45-piece light concert orchestra has been formed by the CBC to play Saturday evening programs. Selections will range from popular music to familiar classics. Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, variety shows produced in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver will be broadcast. Canadian jazz groups will be heard on Thursday evenings, and the program Tempo will include daily a segment of music by small combos.

Sir Ernest MacMillan will conduct the new talent program, and a panel of judges will grade contestants. Shows will originate in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, with semi-finals and the final broadcast from Toronto. The program will be heard on Sunday evenings.

Matinee Highlights, a selection from the week's top features on Trans-Canada Matinee, will be heard on Sunday mornings. Stories with John Drainie is the title of a series of daily readings by Drainie of original short stories by Canadian writers. The programs of music of different ethnic groups in Canada originating in several Canadian cities, will be heard on Friday nights.

CBC Wednesday Night this year will include a series of recitals by celebrities, and a series of dramas which won the Italia Prize. Thursday will be primarily a talks and public affairs evening, with Citizens' Forum as the main program. Other programs examining major issues are also planned.

Among returning Saturday programs will be the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts and Stories in French. The French-language period on CBC radio will be extended from 15 minutes to a half-hour. Chansonettes, a program of French songs, will follow Gerard Arthur's readings of well-known stories by French authors.

MATINEE HIGHLIGHTS

Rebroadcast of the main items from last week's Trans-Canada Matinee, designed for a Sunday audience of business women and the general listening public. From time to time Matinee Highlights will also include items not heard on Trans-Canada Matinee. This week's items:

A Toronto Sunday. Visitors to Toronto have often been overheard to remark, "Oh, I know Toronto." I spent a week there one Sunday." Toronto columnist Jim Knight examines the fable that is the Toronto Sunday.

The Lonesome One. George Gobel was the headline star at this year's grandstand show at the Canadian National Exhibition. While he was there Pat Patterson obtained an interview with him for Matinee.

Berlin Today. Paul Fox, professor of political economy at the University of Toronto and a frequent contributor to CBC programs, visited Berlin this summer. This is an account of his impressions of the divided city.

Then and Now. Margaret Addison Hall is the new women's residence at Victoria College, University of Toronto. Marjorie Wood, an old "Vic" grad today compares the new residence with college residences of her scholastic days.

Prometheus Bound

A modernized version of Aeschylus' play

Len
Peterson

PROMETHEUS is one of our present-day heroes. It's quite wonderful what he did for us. But did he go too far? Judge for yourself when you hear his story. He was one of the Titans of Greek mythology, vigorous, audaciously defiant to the point of recklessness, but a warm, very human character, indeed. The tale goes that the great god Zeus employed him to make men out of mud and water. Then, in pity for the helpless creatures he had brought to life, Prometheus stole fire from heaven and gave it to them, and taught them many arts, including the one of self-preservation. Zeus was naturally wrathful. It's said that he planned to destroy the human race and supplant it by a new and better species, to avenge himself because man had got the better of him. To counterbalance Prometheus' gifts to man, Zeus sent Pandora to earth as the first woman, to become the wife of Prometheus' brother. With her she took a box that Zeus forbade her to open, but, having a woman's natural curiosity, she disobeyed, and let loose all the evils that have been hounding man ever since. Only Hope stayed inside.

Then Zeus turned his attention to Prometheus, who knew the secret of how the great god would be overthrown one day. He ordered Prometheus chained to a crag in the wilderness of Mount Caucasus, to suffer interminable torment—all day an eagle preyed on his liver, which was renewed at night, ready for further torture the next day. Unflinching, Prometheus steadfastly refused to tell Zeus the secret of man's power to preserve himself. Eventually he was delivered by being swallowed up in a giant earthquake. Through his heroism we retained the nucleus of our knowledge of science and the arts. But will this great treasure destroy us in the end? That, briefly, is the situation in Len Peterson's reworking of Prometheus Bound, one of a trilogy by the Greek playwright Aeschylus. If you're not a mythology fan, don't get the idea that this is just a grim, dry tale in archaic language about creatures with ideas too far removed from our philosophy to be credible. On the contrary. Peterson has modernized the language, put considerable punch into the story, rearranged the sequences but retained most of the plot, and the result is a meaty, entertaining drama which will open the latest CBC Stage series Sunday night on CBC radio. Esse Ljungh will produce.

"I'm staggered at how contemporary the play really is," says

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

In and Out of the Theatre. British actress Irene Worth was one of the stars at this summer's Stratford Festival where she played Rosalind in Shakespeare's "As You Like It." This was Miss Worth's second appearance at the Canadian festival; she helped to make theatrical history when she starred in the festival's first productions. Gerald Pratley, Toronto film critic, talks today to Miss Worth about her experiences at Stratford, her roles on other great stages, and hears her opinions about her work and her acquaintances in the theatre.

So You're Elected. Countless women have muttered that phrase to themselves on the morning after the annual meeting of one of the organizations to which they belong. "What happens now? Where do I begin? With just those women in mind, Matinee today begins a new series directed at the "organization woman." During the course of eight consecutive weekly broadcasts prominent members of women's organizations from various Canadian centres will discuss all the aspects of club activities. Speakers will outline the duties of the various officers and tackle some of the thorny problems of special events, publicity, guest speakers, financing, and other matters. In this first program, today, the role of the committee chairman or convenor is defined. The talk will outline and illustrate the various steps taken by a chairman to get her committee functioning, the authority she delegates and the meetings she calls.

Catholic Women's League. A special report on the Catholic Women's League of Canada from St. John, New Brunswick.

Daily Features . . . News commentary from Constance Garneau of Montreal, recorded music prepared and presented by Ruby Mercer of Toronto, and another episode from Winnipeg in Marian Waldman's serial "The Dancers."

The Growth of the Novel

A new "University of the Air" series

by Paul West

THE NOVEL as an art form goes back to the ancient Greeks, back as far as Homer's Odyssey of the tenth century B.C. If for centuries the classical romances lay undeveloped, at least since the 15th and 16th centuries it has flourished and matured. Today, some critics argue, the novel is dying.

Critic Paul West, Assistant Professor of English at Memorial University, St. John's, Newfoundland, believes not. He tells why in the first of a new series of University of the Air lectures called The Growth of the Novel, which starts on Monday, October 5, on CBC radio.

During the series Professor West will discuss as novels such works as The Golden Ass and Pilgrim's Progress, although they are not usually so considered.

The first lecture sees the novel's growth in terms of three views of man: man in the abstract, man in society, and man in the privacy of his own mind. Today, Professor West suggests, the three factors have merged. But the novel, with the resources and complexity of maturity, is still doing its main job: social depiction.

The classical "novel" for instance—Longus' Daphnis and Chloe (3rd century A.D.), and Apuleius' The Golden Ass (2nd century A.D.)—deals with abstract types rather than with individual psychology, subjecting a representative figure to a series of tests, grim or frivolous.

In the 16th and 17th centuries "novelists" began introducing a note of realism into their works—Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress and Thomas Nashe's The Unfortunate Traveller. The 18th century brought the discipline of tighter plot, more subtle psychological insights and the use of the novel for social probing: from Daniel Defoe's Moll Flanders to Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice.

The 19th century saw the great age of the novel. The critical observation of society, psychological insight, and a statement of cosmology are synthesized in books like Flaubert's Madame Bovary, Dickens' Great Expectations, Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment and Tolstoy's War and Peace.

In the twentieth century we still find novelists attempting this synthesis, but, while they often acquire a balance and proportion not inferior to the 19th century novel, yet in some way they often falter in their coherence: Lawrence's Sons and Lovers, Forster's A Passage to India, down to Pasternak's Dr. Zhivago. But also in this century, we have the poet's novel; inward vision and mental flux overpower any effort at social realism. The novel attempts the poet's work, neglecting the surface of things for the sometimes unrewarding depths of mind: Proust's Remembrance of Things Past, Joyce's Ulysses and Woolf's The Waves.

Finally, with a lecture to itself, comes the American novel possessing a tendency to turn every activity into a fable of spiritual pioneering. The American novel exposes the American's keen response to the theme of social rise in cosmic and romantic terms. In this sense the American novel evokes the abstract patterns of the classical novel

Performance of Father Geoffrey Beaumont's 20th Century Folk Mass performed by Frank Weir and his Concert Orchestra, the Peter Knight Singers and Charles Young, cantor, recorded in 1957 in England. Fr. Beaumont has attempted, by use of popular-type music—even jazz—to emphasize the meaning and drama of the Mass rather than its historical beauty, and "to provide men and women living in the modern world with an expression of faith that is close to their own experience." He justifies this attempt by pointing out that the division separating religious and secular music is both artificial and comparatively recent in origin, that love songs and drinking songs were transformed into hymns in the middle ages, and that in taking over these musical forms and adapting them to their own uses the Church drew strength from their popularity. Fr. Beaumont (born in 1904) wrote songs for revues while an undergraduate at Cambridge. After qualifying as a solicitor he discovered his vocation and in 1932 he was ordained. He has been a chaplain with the Royal Marines, chaplain to Trinity College, Cambridge, and chaplain to the British Embassy in Madrid. Since 1957

he has been vicar of St. George's, Camberwell.

GROWTH OF THE NOVEL

while attempting the same sort of social analysis as the 19th century novel: James' Daisy Miller, Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn, Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby, and Hemingway's The Old Man and the Sea.
Professor Paul West has been on CBC radio and TV since coming to Canada in 1957. He was born in England, and although not yet thirty has had much verse and prose published in periodicals like The New Statesman, The Canadian Forum, Times Literary Supplement and many others. He has also published a number of books, critical and poetry.

Readers desiring a free pamphlet on The Growth of the Novel, listing time and dates for all lectures plus supplementary reading lists, should write: CBC Publications Branch, Box 500, Toronto. At the close of the series, the lectures will be published in book form. Orders are now being taken at the same address: $1 for the paper cover, $1.50 for the hard cover suitable for libraries.

MONDAY RADIO NOTES

Bannerman of the book by Dr. E. A. Corbett. An informal account of his years in the extension department of the University of Alberta, it's filled with unusual stories about usual and delightful people. In his introduction to the book Leonard W. Brockington describes it as "a great Canadian documentary lightened with glimpses of a lovable personality."
"Here also," Mr. Brockington says, are a richness of stories and character sketches and hundreds of human touches which make the pages sparkle in the eyes of the reader as the personality of the author sparkles in the company of his friends."

Among the incidents: One time Dr. Corbett arrived in a small Alberta community to deliver a lecture and found that the lecture hall had disappeared. Some rapid detection showed that a farmer had hauled it out of town to use it for storing surplus wheat. The lecture was delayed until the audience had hitched up several teams and towed the hall back to town. Another time the hand-crank for his portable movie projector disappeared just before he was due to begin an illustrated lecture in a small farming community. The audience had to sit there until a drunken blacksmith had manufactured a new one.

POST-NEWS TALK

"A Traveller in Asia," first in a series of weekly Post-News Talks by Felix Greene, an Englishman who has been living for some years in California and is currently on a trip across Asia. In each country he will record his impressions on tape which will be flown to the CBC weekly. Tonight Mr. Greene talks about the little-known country of Afghanistan in central Asia, where East and West are now competing for the favour of an uncommitted people. Mr. Green was the first BBC representative in New York just before the Second World War and has visited many parts of the world for the British Colonial and Foreign Offices. His report on Red China in a CBC series last year aroused considerable interest.

Of all the countries in South-East Asia, Malaya, even on the isolated east coast, is outstanding for its roads and garages and the friendliness of its people; it's only that you must have patience, and must avoid this Western vice of being in a hurry, of wanting to finish a set program in a given time. It's the people who always insist on doing that who seem to grow weary in the tropics and suffer the most from prickly heat.—Anthony Lawrence, correspondent in South-East Asia, speaking on BBC.

Peterson. "I chose it originally because it deals with a lot of questions we're asking ourselves about our dilemma today. But after working on it I found it was even more pointed than I had thought. It hits home in a lot of areas and makes us think . . . those old Greek writers knew as much about life as anyone, even if they did live 2,000 years ago! We can learn a lot from them. Aeschylus nailed down quite a few things that had been puzzling me."

He goes on to say that one of the problems in adapting Greek mythology is making the old characters pertinent and convincing to a contemporary audience. He felt that none of the translations of Prometheus Bound was quite right for broadcasting. Because none had been done by a playwright, the dramatic potential hadn't been used fully, and the figures of speech were too involved, so Peterson did a tailoring job on the story, with interesting results. He thinks that the play "is especially good for radio because it hasn't much physical action, but it's a very powerful story and moves along nicely. I'm working in close collaboration with arranger-conductor Morris Surdin to make up for visual aids with some rather eloquent music."

Aeschylus has given Peterson some powerful material to work with. The ancient Greek is a master of contrasts in dealing with the dark mysteries of fate, with the forces of destiny working through divine will and human passion, which he reveals with shuddering intensity. But he gave more to the theatre than words. He introduced the raised stage, the elaborate tragic costume, and the second actor, making possible a clash of interests and characters. It's said that he was killed when an eagle mistook his bald head for a stone and dropped a tortoise on it to break the shell.

of plucked-string tone that the harpsichord provided. But for the past two centuries or so, interest in the plucked strings has waxed and waned, from almost fanatical addiction to almost total neglect—and this interest, moreover, shifts about in a curious way from one section of the body politic to another. The harp was a widely cultivated domestic instrument in the early 19th century, when it was almost unknown in the orchestra and concert hall; and in my own up-and-coming days, to have revealed even a sneaking interest in, say, the mandoline, in my part of the world, would definitely have been to downgrade yourself from the ranks of the elite—although the instrument had enjoyed a considerable vogue a generation or so before.

Why these things should be so, I have no idea. It may be that at times when the singing tone of bowed string and pipe is the ideal to be admired and cultivated, the thinner, drier sounds of plucked strings fall less gratefully on the ear, and produce some revulsion. Or social factors may have something to do with it; plucked strings have always been beloved of the masses, and perhaps the fluctuating interest of the musically literate in some subtle way reflects the alternating manifestations of the aristocratic and plebeian spirits, so peculiarly characteristic of intellectual and artistic development. But such speculations, though interesting, are not very profitable.

The esteem in which the lute was once held can be gauged from the list of composers on whom Mr. Bream has drawn for his program—Robert Johnson, Philip Rosseter, Daniel Batchelor, John Dowland—giants in their 16th century day, and some of them masters whose fame still rings down the ages. Soon after their time, the lute virtually disappeared from sight, to be revived only in the last few years—there are still only a handful of concert-calibre players in the world. The guitar, while it never suffered the total eclipse of the lute, had its own ups and downs; in our own day it has made a strong come-back as an instrument of high artistic capacity, through the example and influence of such masters as Segovia. On it, Mr. Bream will play music by Bach and Villa-Lobos, and some Variations on a Theme of Mozart, by Fernando Sor, who died in 1829, and whose level of attainment with it, as both composer and player, earned him the title of the "Beethoven of the Guitar."

The week's music generally offers a pleasingly variegated blend of old names and new. Pepusch, contemporary of Handel in England, who shares the Sunday morning Chamber Music program of the Baroque Trio of Montreal, with Couperin as the composer of the Sonata by which he is here represented. The Winnipeg Concert of Sunday afternoon divides its program between Holzbauer, Schubert and the contemporary English composer Francis Baines, playing the latter's Symphony For Chamber Orchestra, his best known work.
